SUMMARY

In the first part of my career I worked in finance and now I want to develop myself in the field of web as a Frontend Developer. Starting in a new country motivated me to develop new skills. I made a research of Norwegian job market and saw that there is high demand for developers here. That and the fact I always were good in technologies made me even more motivated. I spent 1 year studying and developing my knowledge in coding. I want to find a place where I can grow as a specialist and be a valuable addition to the company.
